

LISTING WITH

DANIEL YOON

GREATER RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

SELLER REPRESENTATIVE SPECIALIST · BROKERED BY EXP REALTY

804.896.2694 | DANIELYOONREALTY.COM

DANIEL YOON
BROKERED BY EXP REALTY

804.896.2694 | DANIELYOONREALTY.COM

MEET

DANIEL

Thank you for the opportunity to talk about the sale of your home. This guide walks through exactly how I price, prepare, market, and negotiate a listing — so you know what to expect at every step, from our first conversation to the closing table.

CONTACT

804.896.2694

daniel.yoon@exprealty.com

www.DanielYoonRealty.com

Greater Richmond, Virginia

My Mission

"Selling a home is one of the biggest financial decisions most families ever make — and it deserves more than a sign in the yard. My commitment is to guide you with honesty, preparation, and relentless communication, to market your home like it matters, and to negotiate every dollar as if it were my own. My goal isn't just a closed sale; it's a client who would refer me to the people they care about."

— DANIEL YOON

FULL-SERVICE LISTING EXPERIENCE

Every listing I take on gets my full attention from day one to closing day. You'll have one point of contact — me — backed by the resources, technology, and national network of eXp Realty. Here is what that looks like in practice:

STRATEGY & PRICING

- In-depth comparative market analysis
- Pricing strategy built around your timeline and goals
- Honest guidance on value — not inflated promises

PREPARATION & STAGING

- Room-by-room walk-through with prep recommendations
- Trusted vendor referrals for repairs and updates
- Coordination of photography, signage, and lockbox

MARKETING & EXPOSURE

- Professional photography and MLS-ready media
- Syndication to the major home-search portals
- Social and digital campaigns targeting active buyers

NEGOTIATION TO CLOSING

- Offer review, negotiation, and contract management
- Inspection, appraisal, and settlement coordination
- Communication at every milestone — no surprises

Backed by eXp Realty

eXp Realty is one of the largest independent real estate brokerages in North America, with agents across the United States and around the world. That gives your listing a referral network that reaches far beyond Richmond — and gives you an agent supported by industry-leading technology, transaction support, and training.

CREDENTIALS & DESIGNATIONS

Real estate credentials aren't wall decorations — they represent focused training in the exact skills a seller depends on: pricing, marketing, and negotiation. I've invested in three designations that directly benefit my listing clients.

SELLER REPRESENTATIVE SPECIALIST (SRS)

The premier credential in seller representation. SRS training focuses on advanced pricing strategy, listing marketing, and negotiation — the skills that determine how much your home sells for and how smoothly it closes.

ACCREDITED BUYER'S REPRESENTATIVE (ABR)

Understanding exactly how buyers and their agents think is a seller's advantage. ABR training means I can anticipate how buyers will evaluate your home, structure their offers, and approach negotiations — and position you accordingly.

CERTIFIED NEW HOME CO-BROKER (CNHC)

Specialized training in new-construction transactions. If your buyer pool includes people weighing your home against new builds — common across the Greater Richmond market — I know how builders sell, and how to compete with them.

Rooted in Greater Richmond

From the city neighborhoods to Henrico, Chesterfield, Hanover, and beyond — I work the Greater Richmond market every day. Local pricing knowledge, local buyer patterns, and local professional relationships all go to work for your sale.

KEY MARKET FACTORS

THE RIGHT BALANCE OF THESE FACTORS SELLS YOUR HOME FASTER — AND FOR MORE

■ PRICING

Nothing influences your result more than the price your home debuts at. A well-priced home creates urgency; an overpriced one funds the sale of your neighbors' homes.

■ CONDITION

Buyers decide with their emotions first and their calculators second. Presentation — cleanliness, repairs, staging — directly changes what buyers believe your home is worth.

■ COMPETITION

Buyers compare. Your price and condition will be judged against every active listing and recent sale nearby, so we position your home to win that comparison.

■ TIMING

A listing gets its most attention in its first few weeks on market. We'll make sure your home is fully ready before it debuts, so that window isn't wasted.

■ LOCATION

Location sets the ceiling on value. We can't move the house — but we can market the neighborhood, schools, and lifestyle that come with it.

Within Your Control

Price

Property condition

Staging & presentation

Showing availability

The market sets the value. Our job is to make sure the market sees your home at its absolute best.

PRICING YOUR LISTING

Pricing at true market value from the first day on market matters more than any other decision we'll make together. Historically, the strongest offers tend to arrive early — from buyers who have been watching and waiting for the right home. Price attracts them; overpricing filters them out.

ASKING PRICE VS. BUYERS WHO WILL VIEW THE PROPERTY

Price is a magnet.

A home priced at market value pulls in the largest possible pool of qualified buyers — and more qualified buyers means more showings, stronger offers, and better terms. Price above the market and the magnet weakens; the buyers simply tour something else.

PROPERTY INSPECTIONS

In Virginia, most buyers write a home inspection contingency into their offer — typically a window of about 7–10 days after ratification to have the property professionally inspected. Based on the report, the buyer can accept the home as-is, request repairs or credits, or in many cases walk away. Inspection surprises are one of the most common reasons a contract falls apart, so we prepare for the inspection before we ever list.

HOW THE SELLER SEES IT

Years of memories, upgrades,
and pride of ownership.

HOW THE BUYER SEES IT

A major purchase they're anxious not to get wrong.

HOW THE INSPECTOR SEES IT

A checklist of every system, seam, and shingle.

TWO WAYS TO PROTECT YOUR SALE BEFORE IT STARTS

■ HANDLE DEFERRED MAINTENANCE NOW

Nobody knows your home's quirks better than you. Fixing the leaky faucet, the sticking door, and the tripped GFCI before listing costs far less than the same items do at the negotiating table — where every flaw gets priced at retail. A well-maintained home inspects better, sells faster, and keeps buyers confident.

■ CONSIDER A HOME WARRANTY

A one-year home warranty (typically a few hundred dollars) reassures buyers that covered systems and appliances are protected after closing. Buyers frequently ask sellers to provide one anyway — putting a transferable plan in place early can neutralize that request and calm inspection nerves on both sides.

HOME STAGING

After pricing, presentation is the most powerful lever you control. Before your home is photographed, we'll walk it together room by room and build a focused prep list — what to declutter, what to touch up, and what to leave alone. The goal isn't a magazine shoot; it's helping buyers instantly picture themselves living there.

■ CURB APPEAL

Fresh mulch, trimmed shrubs, and a mowed lawn are the baseline. Small touches — pressure washing, a re-stained front door, polished hardware, a working doorbell — set the tone before buyers ever step inside.

■ KITCHENS & BATHROOMS

These rooms carry the sale. Clear the counters, make appliances and glass shine, and tuck away everyday items like toothbrushes and cleaning products for photos and showings.

■ FLOORING

Worn carpet is one of the most common buyer objections. Replace it if it's tired, deep-clean it if it's salvageable, and refresh tile grout — floors quietly signal how well the whole home was kept.

■ WALLS & TRIM

Fresh, neutral paint is consistently the highest-return dollar you can spend preparing a home. Crisp walls and trim read as “move-in ready” — and buyers pay for move-in ready.

Quick Wins Before Every Showing

- Remove entry, kitchen, and bath mats to open up floor space
- Match all light bulbs and replace any that are out
- Stow pet bowls, beds, and litter boxes out of sight
- Clean windows inside and out
- Keep scents subtle — strong fragrance reads as a cover-up
- When in doubt, less: fewer items make rooms feel larger

TRUSTED

VENDOR NETWORK

Getting a home market-ready usually takes a few good tradespeople. I maintain a working network of Richmond-area professionals across the categories below, and I'll connect you with the right people for your specific prep list — with personal referrals provided on request.

HVAC Service, repair & duct cleaning	PLUMBING Repairs & fixture updates	ELECTRICAL Licensed electricians
ROOFING Repair & replacement	PAINTING Interior & exterior	HANDYMAN Punch lists & small repairs
FLOORING Carpet, hardwood & LVP	CLEANING Deep clean & move-out	CARPET & TILE CARE Steam cleaning & grout
LANDSCAPING Cleanups & curb appeal	PRESSURE WASHING Siding, decks & walks	WINDOWS Cleaning, glass & blinds
GENERAL CONTRACTORS Larger pre-sale projects	HOME INSPECTORS Pre-listing inspections	MOVERS Local & long distance

While I refer professionals whose work I trust, I cannot guarantee or warrant the work or business practices of any independent vendor. Please do your own due diligence when selecting any service provider.

PROFESSIONAL PHOTOGRAPHY

■ WHERE FIRST IMPRESSIONS HAPPEN

Nearly every buyer's first showing is on a screen. From dozens of online listings, buyers shortlist a handful of homes to tour in person — and photography is what gets your home onto that shortlist. We only get one debut, so we make it count.

■ MAGAZINE-QUALITY MEDIA

Your home will be professionally photographed and edited, capturing every room at its best. Where it benefits the home, we can add twilight photography and aerial shots — and skip them where they wouldn't flatter (a small lot rarely benefits from a drone).

■ READY FOR EVERY FORMAT

The same media powers your MLS listing, the major search portals, social campaigns, and print materials — one consistent, polished presentation of your home everywhere buyers look.

■ ONCE WE'RE PHOTOGRAPHED

Sign in the yard, lockbox on the door, listing loaded and proofed — from photos to live on the market typically within days, timed to your schedule.

The Debut Checklist

- Prep and staging complete before the shoot
- Listing description written and proofed
- Showing schedule and instructions set
- Professional photos edited and selected
- Sign and lockbox in place
- Launch timed for maximum first-weekend exposure

Buyers scroll fast. Great photography is the difference between a swipe past and a showing request.

REACHING BUYERS

More than half of buyers first discover the home they ultimately purchase online, and most of the rest find it through their agent. That's why my marketing puts your home where buyers actually are: the search portals, the MLS agents work from, and the social feeds they scroll every day.

WHERE BUYERS FIRST FOUND THE HOME THEY PURCHASED

Source: National Association of REALTORS® Profile of Home Buyers and Sellers

WHERE YOUR HOME IS ADVERTISED

Your listing syndicates from the MLS to the portals where virtually every buyer searches — plus eXp Realty's national agent network and my own channels.

MLS

Central Virginia Regional MLS

Zillow

The #1 home search portal

Realtor.com

Direct MLS-fed listings

Redfin

Tech-first buyer audience

Homes.com

Fast-growing national portal

Trulia

Neighborhood-focused search

eXp Realty

National referral network

DanielYoonRealty.com

Featured listing placement

Social Media

Instagram · Facebook · YouTube ·
LinkedIn · TikTok

One Listing, Everywhere at Once

The moment your home goes live in the MLS, it syndicates across the major portals and in front of thousands of agents — then social and digital campaigns keep it in front of active Richmond-area buyers throughout the listing.

OPEN HOUSES

FACT VS. FICTION

Open houses can absolutely play a role in selling your home — but they work best as one tool among many, not as the whole strategy. Before we decide whether and when to hold one, here's an honest look at the common myths:

MYTH: ONLY SERIOUS BUYERS WALK THROUGH AN OPEN HOUSE

Reality: Many open-house visitors haven't spoken with a lender and don't yet know what they can afford. Buyers touring by private appointment with an agent are far more likely to be pre-qualified and genuinely in the market.

MYTH: THE NEIGHBORS WON'T BOTHER COMING

Reality: They will — and that's not all bad. Curious neighbors compare your home to theirs, and they often know the exact friend or family member who's been wanting to move into the neighborhood.

MYTH: YOU MUST HOLD AN OPEN HOUSE TO SELL

Reality: Homes sell every week without one. An agent who leans entirely on open houses is often substituting them for the online marketing that actually reaches today's buyers.

MYTH: OPEN HOUSES NEVER SELL HOMES

Reality: The odds of a direct sale are modest, but open houses build traffic, buzz, and urgency — and occasionally produce the buyer. When it serves your sale, I'll host it and work it properly.

A word of strategy: too many open houses can make a listing look anxious. Spacing them out — and pairing one with any price improvement — keeps each event working in your favor.

SHOWING SERVICES

■ EASY, CONTROLLED SCHEDULING

Showings are managed through a professional scheduling service, so every request is verified, logged, and confirmed on your terms. You'll set the notice window and any off-limits times that fit your household.

■ SAY YES WHEN YOU CAN

Every declined showing is a buyer who may never circle back. Give your home its best chance by accepting as many requests as reasonably possible — especially in the critical first weeks on market.

■ SHOWTIME STANDARDS

Before each showing, aim to recreate photo day: lights on, blinds open, counters clear, and everyone (pets included) out of the house so buyers can talk freely and linger.

■ FEEDBACK, TRACKED DOWN

I request feedback after every showing. Not every agent responds promptly, but I follow up persistently and share what I learn with you — including the patterns that tell us whether price, condition, or presentation needs adjusting.

Momentum Matters

A listing draws its heaviest attention from buyers and agents when it first hits the market. Homes that show easily during that early surge — clean, available, and welcoming — capture offers that reluctant listings miss. Timing plus access equals leverage.

Every showing is an audition. We'll make sure your home is always ready for the part.

SMART HOMES & RECORDING BUYERS

Doorbell cameras, indoor cameras, and smart speakers are everywhere — but during showings they can create real legal risk. Before your home hits the market, let's make sure your technology doesn't become a liability.

■ AUDIO IS THE DANGER ZONE

Virginia's consent rules for recording conversations generally protect you only when you are a party to the conversation. Capturing audio of buyers talking privately inside your home — a conversation you're not part of — can expose you to serious liability under state and federal law. When in doubt, turn audio recording off during showings.

■ VIDEO IS SAFER, WITH LIMITS

Silent video from cameras covering common areas — the exterior, entry, or garage — is generally lower risk. Cameras should never cover private spaces like bathrooms, and combining video with audio during a showing is never worth the exposure.

■ VISITORS HAVE PRIVACY RIGHTS

An invitation into your home is not consent to be recorded however you like. Privacy law protects the people walking through your door, and courts take overreach seriously. If you have questions about your specific setup, consult an attorney before listing.

■ THE BETTER WAY TO HEAR BUYERS

Eavesdropping isn't just risky — it's unnecessary. Honest, structured feedback comes through your agent, and it's far more useful than anything overheard on a doorbell camera.

Before We List

Tell me about every recording device in the home. We'll decide together what gets disabled, what gets disclosed, and how to keep your sale — and you — protected.

FROM OFFER TO INSPECTION

■ THE OFFER ARRIVES

The moment an offer comes in, I'll send it to you and walk you through every term — not just price, but financing strength, contingencies, timelines, and closing costs. Together we'll decide whether to accept, counter, or negotiate further, and I'll handle those conversations on your behalf.

■ RATIFICATION

When both parties have agreed to all terms in writing, the contract is ratified and the clock starts on the buyer's contingency periods.

■ THE INSPECTION PERIOD

Most Virginia contracts include a home inspection contingency, typically about 7-10 days. The buyer will schedule a professional inspection — plan to be away from the home for it; a thorough inspection usually runs three to four hours.

■ REPAIR NEGOTIATIONS

After the report comes back, the buyer may request repairs or credits. Everything is negotiable — we'll respond strategically, agree on terms in a written addendum, and keep the deal moving. Any agreed repairs are completed before closing, with receipts provided.

My Rule for This Phase

No surprises. You'll know where the transaction stands at every step — what's been requested, what I recommend, and exactly what happens next. Decisions are always yours; my job is to make sure they're informed ones.

[Client testimonial — add a quote from a past seller here]

— CLIENT NAME, PREVIOUS SELLER

THE APPRAISAL

■ WHAT HAPPENS

Once inspection matters are resolved, the buyer's lender orders an appraisal. The appraiser visits the home — usually for well under an hour — to measure, photograph, and evaluate it against recent comparable sales. I coordinate access and timing so it's painless for you.

■ WHY IT MATTERS

The appraisal protects the lender, but it effectively sets a ceiling on the financed price. If the appraised value comes in at or above the contract price, we proceed as planned. If it comes in short, the price or terms get renegotiated — and I'll be armed with the comparable sales data to fight for your number.

■ HOW WE PREPARE

Before the appraiser arrives, I provide a package of the strongest recent comparables, along with a list of your home's upgrades and improvements. Appraisers are independent, but complete information leads to accurate values.

■ THE RESULTS

Results typically arrive within about a week. I'll review them with you the day they land and explain exactly what they mean for your closing.

A Pricing Reality Check

The appraisal is one more reason strategic pricing wins: a contract price the market can't support often gets pulled back to earth at the appraisal anyway. Pricing right from the start means the appraisal confirms your value instead of threatening your deal.

[Client testimonial — add a quote from a past seller here]

— CLIENT NAME, PREVIOUS SELLER

CLEAR TO CLOSE

■ “CLEAR TO CLOSE”

When the buyer's lender issues a clear to close, every financing condition has been satisfied — the loan is fully approved. From here, the settlement agent prepares the final numbers.

■ YOUR SETTLEMENT STATEMENT

In Virginia, closings are handled by a settlement agent — a title company or attorney. Shortly before closing you'll receive the settlement statement showing your payoff, prorated taxes, fees, and net proceeds. I review it with you line by line before you sign anything.

■ LOGISTICS TO HANDLE

Schedule utilities to transfer out of your name as of closing (or possession) day — power, water, gas, internet, alarm — and forward your mail with USPS. Address home insurance cancellation for after the deed records, not before.

■ CLOSING DAY

Bring a valid government-issued photo ID. If you'd like proceeds wired, the settlement agent will collect your banking details — always verify wiring instructions by phone with a known number; wire fraud targets real estate closings. Anyone on the deed will need to sign, so plan for all owners to attend or arrange documents in advance.

I'll Be Right There

From the clear-to-close through the final signature, I track every deadline, review every document, and sit beside you at the closing table. You've done the hard part — the finish line is my job.

THE FINAL WALK-THROUGH

Shortly before closing, the buyers will walk the home one last time. Their goal is simple: confirm the property is in the condition they agreed to buy, that negotiated repairs are complete, and that the move-out didn't leave damage behind. The golden rule: leave the home the way you'd hope to find it if you were the one moving in.

YOUR WALK-THROUGH CHECKLIST

- Patch and touch up nail holes as you take down décor — start early so you're not rushing during the move. A small artist's brush and matching paint make the work disappear.
- Remove all trash and personal items, and have the home cleaned after the movers finish.
- Have the lawn cut within a few days of closing so the exterior looks as good as the interior.
- Leave manuals, warranties, garage remotes, and mailbox keys together in a kitchen drawer; bring spare house keys to closing.
- Complete any negotiated repairs before the walk-through and keep the receipts to share.
- Plan to be fully moved out by the evening before closing, so the buyers can schedule their walk-through without pressure.

If Something Goes Wrong

If anything is damaged during the move-out, tell me immediately — a repair, a credit, or a simple conversation almost always solves it. What causes closing delays isn't the problem; it's the surprise.

AFTER THE OFFER

SELLER FAQ

SHOULD I BE HOME FOR THE BUYER'S INSPECTION?

No — this is the buyer's time with the home and their inspector. They'll speak more freely, and the process moves faster, when the owner isn't present.

DO I HAVE TO AGREE TO THE BUYER'S REPAIR REQUESTS?

No. Repair requests — and requests for credits in place of repairs — are negotiable like everything else in the contract. We'll respond with a strategy, not a reflex.

CAN WE KEEP SHOWING THE HOUSE AFTER ACCEPTING AN OFFER?

You can. Some sellers continue showings for backup offers, though you can't accept another offer unless the current contract falls through. In practice, most listings move to pending status and showings taper off — we'll pick the approach that fits your situation.

WHEN SHOULD WE START PACKING?

Seriously packing? Once repairs are negotiated and the appraisal has come back — that's when the transaction's biggest hurdles are behind you.

IS THE CLOSING DATE GUARANTEED?

Treat it as a target, not a promise. Financed purchases commonly take 30–45+ days for full loan approval, and the precise date and time are usually confirmed only in the final days before closing. I'll keep you posted at every step.

WHAT HAPPENS IF THE BUYER'S FINANCING FALLS THROUGH?

We assess quickly and relist or move to a backup offer with minimal lost time. It's also why we weigh financing strength — not just price — when choosing an offer in the first place.

Let's sell your home.

DANIEL YOON · EXP REALTY · GREATER RICHMOND, VA

804.896.2694

daniel.yoon@exprealty.com

